LINCOLN AVENUE GRADE IS FOUND SATISFACTORY

No Objections Are Filed by Property Holders Along Street

LIGHTNING PROPOSITION

Council Hears Representative of Welsbach Company --That 8th Street Matter

With a number of property holders along Lincoln avenue present council took up the matter of the grade set by Borough Engineer Paul G. Elder at a meeting Friday night for discussion. It was the night for the filing of objections to the grade as established. There were no objections made however, everything being satisfactory. Plans were gone over thoroughly. The grade ordinance will not be taken up until at a regular meeting.

After a proposition had been submitted by Harry M. McCabe of Pittsburg representing the Welsbach company to light the streets of Charleroi by gas at the rate of $20 per light—at least 700 lights being required—the light committee made their report of investigations made recently. They reported that by substituting 1 Tungsten lights of 75 watts each for 21 arc lights, which would mean a reduction in the cost to the borough of nearly $500, the town would be well lighted. The light committee's report was laid on the table until they could investigate the proposition of the Welsbach. Then the light contract for the year will be let.

Representatives of the West Penn electric company were present and showed maps of their proposed tower to be placed at Eighth street if changes for which the Macbeth-Evans Glass company has been asking, are made. This latter was only discussed and the finality of the matter was that the West Penn people were told that until they and the Macbeth-Evans company could effect agreements council could do nothing.

Through a representative of the Bell Telephone company presented a request that they be allowed to put up more poles in the borough it being claimed that this many were necessary to supply the increasing service. The borough engineer and street committee were given charge of the matter.

TALKED OF WOMEN OF ANCIENT TIMES

"Women of Ancient Times" was the subject of study taken up Friday afternoon by the Athene Club at their regular fortnightly meeting. Mrs. J. T. Hackett was the hostess at her home on Fifth street. The program consisted of short talks by Mrs. E. C. Niver on "Aspasia of Greece," Mrs. H. J. Repman on "Cornelia of Rome," and Mrs. F. P. McKey on "Cleopatra of Egypt." The meeting was the last which the president, Miss Laura Brown will participate in this year. Miss Brown and her mother leave tomorrow for their new home in Toledo, Ohio, where Mr.Brown is superintendent of the glass works. Mrs T. M. Faddis the first vice president, as president of the Athena Club, succeeds Miss Brown.

Demand for Higher Pay

T. L. Lewis Says Miners Will Present Request for Better Wages

T. L. Lewis, former International President of the United Mine Workers of America, stated at Wheeling Friday that next year the miners would demand an increase of wages in all the local mining districts. He stated that they would demand $1 per ton for pick-mined coal and 75 cents per ton for machine-mined coal. The miners now receive 95 cents per ton for pick-mined coal and 55½ cents per ton for machine-mined coal.

Former President Lewis stated that the above increases would be part of the platform at the next convention of the Unied Mine Workers of America. Mr. Lewis is said to be a candidate for president of the international organization at the forthcoming election.

LARCENY CHARGED IN INFORMATION

On information received Chief of Police C. W. Albright has made information against Harry Smith, alias Brawn, before Justice of the Peace E. E. Rice, charging the man with larceny. Brown or Smith is alleged to have taken form the tailor shop of L. R. Bedsworth several yards of suiting material.

TWO MINES SUSPENDED

Somers No. 1 and Arnold City Workings Are Closed

INCLUDED IN NEW TRACT

Among the 19 mines closed by the H. C. Frick Coke company when it took over a number of the Pittsburg Coal company holdings, were the Somers No. 4 mine at Pricedale and the Arnold No. 1 mine at Arnold City. At these two mines the current pay roll was closed and the men paid in full. Indefinite suspension was ordered.

There are many surmises in mining circles as to just what the H. C. Frick Company intends to do with the 19 mines closed down. Probably some of the openings will be used but which ones only the chief officials of H. C. Frick company and the United States Steel corporation, which buys the Coke concern, know.

TIE TO BE DECIDED BY FLIPPING COPPERS

Candidates on Various Ticket to Meet at Washington Monday and "Take Chance" on Their "Nomination"

Next Monday a bunch of candidates for local offices in borough and township, will assemble at the county commissioners' office in Washington and "flip coppers" or toss a coin to decide who will be the nominee for various offices on various tickets. Despite the wide range of candidates as well as tickets, it is officially announced that 363 tie votes occurred in the county. The law provides that where a tie vote occurs the contestants shall toss a coin or decide by drawing lots who is to be the nominee on the official ballot.

The tie votes occur for nearly all of the township and borough offices in various parts of the county. In Charleroi it is announced that Fred Pieper, Jr., and Ben Wilson are a tie with 37 votes each on the Keystone ticket for school director for two years, and that for justice of the peace on the same ticket C. G. Collins, R. P. Fitzgerald and Charles Black are a tie with six votes apiece. This latter is an error, as more Keystone votes than that were cast in a single precinct. Some of the candidates interested in the matter have written to the commissioners calling attention to the error, and it is probable that the withdrawal of Charles Black, which had been filed in accordance with the fusion agreement will be presented at the commissioners office, so that a toss up for a place on that ticket will not be necessary. Black was the minority candidate.

In Fallowfield township, Joseph Armbrewster and John A. Carson are tied for the office of constable on the Keystone ticket with one vote each. In Speers borough Samuel Corbett and Dan Dougherty are tied with four votes each for auditor on the Keystone ticket. Twilight borough has a tie on the Republican ticket, where S. V. Hughes, H. O. Smith and M. Huber have one vote each for high constable.

STATEMENT IS ISSUED

Hussey-Binns Shovel Company Corrects Rumors

NO CHANGE IS MADE

To offset certain annoying rumors, the Hussey-Binns Shovel company following a meeting of the board of directors in Pittsburg Friday, today issued the statement which is published herewith. The rumors were to the effect that satisfactory work was not being done by Superintendent Frank M. Haines here, and that he was to be removed in favor of another former employe of the plant. New men are being put to work at the local plant and from now on there will be additional workmen put on as they apply for duty. It is not thought that many days will pass until the entire plant is working as usual. The statement follows.

To Whom it May Concern:

We understand that rumors exist in Charleroi that the board of directors and officers are dissatisfied with the management of their plant as being conducted by Mr. Frank M. Haines, superintendent. As these rumors are all false and tend to injure the company and interfere with the management by the superintendent, the board of directors and officers, at a meeting held this day have authorized the president to publish in the Charleroi papers the fact that there is no dissatisfaction on the part of the directors and that the superintendent has their unqualified support, his management of the plant and its organization being thoroughly approved by them, all rumors to the contrary notwithstanding.

By order of the Board of Directors.

R. H. Binns,
President.

Death of Boy Electrocuted at Washington to be Investigated

Coroner J. T. Heffran has set next Monday morning at 9:30 o'clock in the coroner's office in the court house in Washington as the time for holding the inquest into the death of Edwin Brownlee. The boy was killed on Monday evening when he caught hold of a highly charged chain leading down the side of an electric light pole in the Seventh ward, Washington. The chain ,which operates the lowering and raising of the light had become charged from an electric light wire that had sagged down by reason of a pin on the arm of a pole breaking off.

WORK IS RESUMED

Alice Mine Near Roscoe Starts Operation After Shutdown

STEADY RUN INDICATED

The Alice mine, across the river from Roscoe, which has been idle for four months, resumed Thursday of this week. This means the employment of 500 more men who have either been idle while the mine was shut down or sought employment elsewhere. The mine has been one of the up-river industrial stand-bys for a number of years, and the enforced idleness during the past summer was keenly felt. Now that operations have resumed a better order of business is looked for in that community.

During the shut-down extensive repairs and alterations were made for the more complete working of the mine. Superintendent Ausburn has everything in first-class shape that will provide for the convenience and safety of the men, and it is expected that the production will be greatly facilitated. In view of the extreme depression that has existed in mining operations along the river the resumption of the Alice mine is hailed with great joy.

State Engineer Inspects Old Rostraver Workings.

BREAK IS MUCH FEARED

Damage and Loss of Life Might Result--Abnormal Rainfall Cause

Alarmed by the presence of a great quantity of water in the old abandoned Rostraver coal mine, which has its main opening on the hill across from North Charleroi, which it is feared will break loose, officials of the Pittsburg Steel company of Monessen have taken up the matter with the State with the hope that the mine be drained. The dip in the mine is near Thirteenth street, Monessen, just above the plant of the Pittsburg Steel company, and should the volume of water force its way through this weak point, a not unlikely occurrence it seems, great damage and possibly the loss of life would be the result.

The abandoned mine occupying 15 acres or more it is stated is completely filled with water. This unusual condition of things was caused by the abnormal rainfall of the past summer The old mine serves as a drainage basin for the entire country in this vicinity.

Roughly estimated if the mine is filled with water there is in the neighborhood of 34,000,000 gallons stored up. This is more than four times the amount of water the two Charleroi Water company reservoirs will hold when filled to their utmost capacity. Some conception of the damage which might be caused by the water in the old mine breaking loose, if even half the water contained therein went out at one time, can be had by a comparison.

That the condition is serious was evidenced this week when Farey Gannet, representing the State, came to Monessen to inspect the conditions and consult with Superintendent Geo. Nosh of the Pittsburg Steel company and John G. Parke, chief engineer. Last year late in the fall the water near the opening on the hill at North Charleroi brooke loose and tore its destructive way down the hillside. Fortunately the damage then was small.

BACHELOR GIRLS HAVE JOLLY TIME

Members of the Bachelor Girl's club and their young men friends were entertained by Miss Jean Calvert at her home on Fallowfield avenue Friday evening at a masquerade party. The affair assumed all the form of an old fashioned Hallowe'en masquerade entertainment, and as a means of diversion old fashioned Hallowe'en games were enjoyed. A fortune teller who told fortunes recklessly as to whether they applied or not, furnished much amusement. The house was picturesquely and handsomely decorated with Hallowe'en decorations. A buffet lunch was served.

ARE WE BOSS RIDDEN?

Nothwithstanding the declarations of an active political minority that Pennsylania is a boss-ridden State, and completely under the political domination of a machine, the rank and file of the people are ordinarily contented in that respect. It is true that certain poliicians are recognized as leaders, who in some respects shape the political destiny of their parties, but their rule, if it may be called that, rests upon the approval and sufferance of the voters of the parties they represent. If there is anything to criticise in the system that prevails or the policy that is followed, it is the people themselves who are to blame, and not the so-called machine.

As a matter of fact if the residents of Pennsylvania will but compare notes, they will readily see that they are as well governed as any of the other States, and enjoy many advantages which the residents of other States do not have. Few, if any of the other States furnish free text books and supplies to their school children, and few of the States have so good a system of public schools which are not only absolutely free, but the children are compelled to go to school until they have the rudiments at least of an English education. In no State does taxation for the maintenance of the Commonwealth rest so lightly on the individual. The corporations and the liquor interests pay the most of the State taxes, and the average per capita of taxation for State purposes is but fourteen cents for each individual a year.

So far as political bossism goes, the voters have in their hands power to nominate all candidates, even to county political committeemen, and the delegates to the State convention who nominate the Governor and State officials. It is true that the voters cannot nominate and elect United States Senator direct—neither can any of the other States for that matter—but they can elect the State Senators and Assemblymen who choose the United States Senators, and can make that an issue any time they see fit. Things are as they are for the reason that a majority of the people want them that way. When the people desire a change they will exercise their prerogative, which is supreme, and elect such candidates and dictate such policies as they desire. No other State or government for that matter can do more to give the people direct control of their affairs than Pennsylvania enjoys today.

FIGHTING DISEASE

Attention is called to an extended article on the "State's Warfare Against Disease," which appears elsewhere in this issue. The article tells what the State is doing to protect the health of its people, and of the great progress made in caring for those who are afflicted with tuberculosis and how through the agency of the State Health Department the Great White Plague is being successfully combatted.

By providing mountain homes for sufferers of the Great White Plague in various sections of the State, as well as the creation of 115 free dispensaries where tuberculosis patients may be treated free of cost, the State Health Department has materially checked the progress of the disease that kills more people than any other malady which flesh is heir to. In preventing the pollution of the water supply of the State progress in another department for the protection of the health of the people has been attained. The State has also taken steps to check the spread of all contagious and infectious diseases, and to prevent accidents and the baneful results that follow. No other State is doing so great a work in the war against disease as Pennsylvania, and a careful reading of the article in question will give a better idea of what the people are having done for them in this respect.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

"Some funny things occur in the banking business," said a banker of the valley the other day. "Recently an Irish woman who had opened a small store at one of the mining hamlets, came to the bank in answer to a letter we had addressed to her telling that a wholesale grocery firm in Pittsburg had drawn on her for an overdue bill. The woman didn't understand the proceeding, and we explained it to her as clearly as we could. She brought along money to pay the bill, and asked how she should send it in. We advised her to get a draft, which was made out and handed over to her, with instructions to send it into the firm in payment for the bill.

"A few days later the woman came post haste to the bank and demanded:

"Didn't ye pay them Pittsburg fellers that money I give ye for their bill?"

"Didn't you send the draft you got here?' she was asked.

" 'Indade I did not. I thought that was me resate, and I hung it on the hook with the rest.'

"She had taken the draft home and filed it thinking we would remit the money, and the firm had written a threatening suit if the bill was not paid. We had hard work explaining to her what she should do, and she departed with the remark:

" 'Thim bankin' ways sure gits me.'"

"When I used to attend the Church League ball game last summer I remarked that the players who grasped their bats close at the end and tried to kill the ball got the fewest hits," said a local fan in talking about the world's series. "The few good batters in the league—those who, while not always getting a safe hit in the game rarely struck out—always held their bat short up and chopped at the ball. I noticed that was the way the big league players batted in the few league games I saw this season, and I wondered why amateur players did not try chopping at the ball instead of swinging.

"This theory of batting is confirmed by none other than Christy Mathewson, the premier pitcher of the Giants. In a newspaper article Mathewson says the reason New York lost the two second games to the Athletics was because the former players tried to make hits by holding their bats close at the end and making long swings, instead of short chops, the way the most of them get their safe hits. Matthewson says there are only three players in the big leagues who can bat safely by grasping their bats at the end and taking long swings. These, he says, are Honus Wagner of the Pittsburg Nationals, Magee of the Philadelphia Nationals, and Lajoie of the Cleveland Americans.

"When this method of batting is so well known, I wonder that amateur and minor league players do not profit more by the experience of the big leaguers."

STATE'S WARFARE AGAINST DISEASE

Remarkable Record of Pennsylvania's Life Saving Service

DEATH RATE DECREASES

Liberal Appropriations For Extension of Health Department's Work and Support by Tener Administration.

Pennsylvania is proud of her department of health. And she may well be for no governmental activity could give back to the people a larger return for the taxpayer's money invested than has State Health Commissioner Dixon's organized "standing army of health," as the well equipped fighting force of sanitary workers has been aptly described.

Created by broad, comprehensive health laws during the administration of Governor Pennypacker, fostered and strengthened by liberal appropriations and broadened with the responsibility of a state-wide campaign against tuberculosis under Governor Stuart, the department of health received the hearty support of Governor Tener and the first legislature in his administration. Today, after six years of existence, it is the people's powerful arm of protection, and as such it has won their trust and confidence and co operation.

Strong and powerful as is the public health arm of the state government service, it has a very human side. Indeed, as Dr. Dixon frequently remarks, the backbone of his department's entire campaign is the friendly working relation in which his health army stands to the people, not as a mere sanitary policeman, but as a helpful friend and adviser. This is the position the state health department aims to assume, teaching and helping along the way to better and happier conditions of living.

Mountain Home For Sufferers.

In no other division of its work is the department of health closer to the people than in the conduct of the state campaign against tuberculosis, nor is any other health work showing more encouraging results. At Mont Alto, where the state has built a model village for tuberculosis, 5531 patients had been treated from June 1, 1907, to June 30, 1911. Here in the pure mountain air and pine-laden breezes hundreds of poor sufferers have won back life and health. Many more have been so greatly benefitted as to be able to return to their homes and assist their families. Still others, in whom the disease had advanced too far, have been made comfortable and provided with a mountain home where they would not be a source of danger to their own people.

Recently, when the state's tuberculosis exhibit was in Pittsburg, visitors noticed a large, husky fellow pointing out the features of a model Mont Alto building to visitors. Upon inquiry it was found that the young man was a former Mont Alto patient. The joy of life and restored health shone in his face. He was only a type of many who have won the fight under the state's care. These persons, with health and strength restored, go back to their home districts as missionaries to teach the lessons of prevention. To follow up these cases wherever they go and see that they take proper care of themselves and others is an important feature of the state government's organized work. The state has been particularly active in caring for advanced cases, the records showing that the greatest number of cases treated at Mont Alto went there with the disease far developed.

New Sanitarium at Cresson.

"The department of health is today fighting tuberculosis," says Dr. Dixon, "with the end in view of ultimately wiping out the disease, of using every dollar of the taxpayer's money to the best advantage, and at the same time showing a wise humanitarianism in the care provided for all classes of cases, the incipient, the moderately advanced and those for whom nothing can be done except to make their closing hours as comfortable as possible."

Protected by the forests from the winter winds, but enjoying the full benefits of the high altitude, the new state sanitorium for tuberculosis at Cresson is being constructed by the department of health on the property given the commonwealth by Mr. Andrew Carnegie. It is so planned that four wings may be constructed, one at a time as needed, utilizing the same central building. Each wing or ward will accommodate 160 patients, giving a total capacity of 640 for the finally completed institution.

The first story of the structure is of sandstone found on the property. The second story is of asbestos boards timbered, and the roof will be of asbestos shingles. The layout permits of the maximum amount of sunlight, with the wards so arranged as to accommodate the varying demand of advanced and incipient cases. The central building will provide a dining room, reception and examining rooms on the first floor, and apartments for the doctors, nurses and help on the second floor.

A Retreat in Berks County.

Connecting the east and west wards with the central building are corridors that have enclosed basements through which the patients can walk to the dining room in stormy weather, and a first floor to be used for the open air treatment. Here the patients may sit in rest chairs and enjoy the sun alike, and thus is overcome the necessity of porches that would bar the sun from the patient's rooms. Into this sun corridor also the patient's bed can be wheeled. To economize by using the same foundation and roof for as much as possible, a second floor of each connecting corridor will accommodate twenty beds for hospital cases.

The sanatorium site, about 2400 feet above the sea level, is sufficiently far from all industries to have a pure air for the patients. The summers are cool and the winters long and unbroken.

At Hamburg, in Berks county, a site has been purchased for an eastern sanatorium, which will be built along the same lines as the one at Cresson. The site selected commands a pleasing view of wooded mountains, broken into gaps and peaks, with the Schuylkill river winding in the valley to the west. Far enough away to avoid all objection of noise and smoke, but near enough to relieve a sense of lonesomeness, the Schuylkill valley branches of the Pennsylvania and Reading railroads are seen. The quaint town of Hamburg nestles in the valley below, bordered by stretches of farm lands with restful pastoral scenes. At these three state institutions, Mont Alto, Cresson and Hamburg, the poor will receive the ideal treatment for tuberculosis.

Dispensaries Care For Thousands.

Hand in hand with the sanatorium work goes the dispensary treatment. At 115 places in Pennsylvania the state department of health has a free tuberculosis dispensary, in charge of a trained physician, with necessary assistants and visiting nurses. Some idea of the amount of work being done by these dispensaries may be gathered from the fact that from July, 1907, to July, 1911, 41,792 tuberculosis sufferers had been examined and treated and regularly visited at their homes by the state's efficient corps of trained nurses.

The educational and sociological work alone that is being done by the state from these dispensaries to prevent the spread of disease and to better the conditions of living among the poor, would amply justify all the money Pennsylvania has appropriated to its tuberculosis campaign. And in connection with this work of educating the people, opportunity should not be lost to refer to the splendid aid given by the public press in general, through which it has been possible from day to day and week to week to talk over these problems of better health and better living conditions with the home group around every fireside in the state.

When the dispensaries were started it was realized that [illegible] fully successful the [illegible] first of all have to locate the indigent cases. It, therefore, solicited and received the hearty co-operation of civic clubs, churches, organized charity associations, labor unions and the large employers of labor throughout the state. This co-operation has always continued, and the department appreciates its value.

Nurses In the Homes.

When an applicant for dispensary treatment has been carefully examined by the physician in charge, and full information as to the history of the case, environment, occupation, etc., noted, he is carefully instructed as to what he must do to improve his own health and the absolute necessity of taking certain precautions to avoid infecting others. He is supplied with sputum cups and paper napkins, and if he is too poor to get regularly the proper nourishment, this is supplied to him in the form of milk and oil, the latter having proven a most efficient food.

A day or so after the new patient has been to the dispensary a trained nurse calls at the home. The squalor and disease breeding conditions that the nurse so frequently finds present a task that would seem impossible. But the nurse is all courage. Bright and cheerful and a model of cleanliness herself, she is not afraid to roll up her sleeves and set the pace for getting the house in order. Windows are thrown open and God's glorious sunshine is allowed to come in and run riot through the rooms, killing as nothing else can do so well the lurking germs of disease. What a difference is made in that home. The tuberculosis patient is thoroughly instructed in the precautions he must observe and the health rules he must follow, and each member of the family is similarly taught how to avoid infection. The patient himself is especially advised to sleep with windows wide open or, better still, to sleep out of doors. Helpful suggestions are offered as to how sleeping quarters can be made out of back porches, for instance, at a nominal expense. Then the nurse makes a quick study of the other conditions in the home. Perhaps she notices that the children are anaemic, poorly nourished and improperly clad, not necessarily because the family is destitute, but because the little income that exists is not being put to best advantage. Here is an opportunity to teach the mother how both in selecting and cooking the food the greatest possible nutrition can be secured for the least amount of money.

Saving of Child Life.

So it is that nurses are going to the homes of the poor throughout Pennsylvania, letting in the sunlight, teaching the life-giving principles of fresh air and proper food, changing filth and disorder to cleanliness and neatness, making these people their friends and thus making them understand that the state is their friend. Can there possibly be any other result than that these people should be lifted up, or, better still, that they should be incited to climb up to a higher plane of living and morality. Thus they become better citizens, better producers, and the commonwealth is so much the healthier, wealthier and happier thereby.

In October, 1905, Health Commissioner Dixon inaugurated free distribution of diphtheria anti-toxin by the state. Up to December, 1910, 27,318 cases of this dread disease, mostly little children, were treated for cure with the life-saving serum. From statistics it is gathered that without anti-toxin forty-two out of every one hundred of these children probably would have died, but thanks to the state's beneficence only 2324 died. Free anti-toxin was also given for immunization purposes in 20,294 cases, mostly children who had been in contact with the disease. All but 335 of these were absolutely protected against diphtheria. The actual saving of child life resulting from the state's free distribution of diphtheria anti-toxin in these five years was in cold figures 9152 lives.

Pollution of Water Supply.

The battle for pure water supplies has been waged in Pennsylvania with unparalleled success. In 1905, when the present purity of water law was enacted the streams of the state from one end to the other were open sewers for municipalities large and small and were poisoned by the individual property owner without any regard whatever for the neighbors down stream. Up to Aug. 1, 1911, private sources of stream pollution to the number of 34,481 had been abated upon formal notice from the department, and thousands more have been stopped through the moral influence of this work.

[illegible] nine modern sewage disposal [illegible] have been either built or are in process of construction as approved by the state. Two hundred and eighty-four municipalities and private sewerage corporations are building comprehensive sewerage systems in accordance with approved plans for sewage treatment works. Eighty-six modern water filtration plants have been approved by the state and are either built or being erected.

And what of typhoid fever, in view of the work for pure water?

In 1906, out of every 100,000 persons in Pennsylvania, 56.5 died of typhoid fever; in 1907, 50.3; in 1908, 34.4; in 1910, 24.5. There are now living more than 2400 persons who, had the death rate of 1906 prevailed in 1910, would have died from typhoid.

Results of Health Campaign.

Consider the economic value to the state of such a saving of life. The most conservative economists place the average value of such a life at $3000. This means that the reduction in the death rate from typhoid fever alone saved the commonwealth $7,200,000. No account is taken in this estimate of the untold suffering and anguish from which thousands of homes were saved.

Thousands of physicians throughout Pennsylvania are being constantly aided in diagnosing their cases by the examinations of pathological specimens sent by them to the state department of health laboratories. Important research work is being done by the state in these laboratories, work that is adding to the world's knowledge of preventative medicine.

More than once in the past few years the federal government has held up as a model Pennsylvania's system for the collection of vital statistics, that phase of work that lies at the foundation of all successful sanitation.

All this has shown striking results. In 1906 the death rate in Pennsylvania per 1000 of population was 16.5; in 1908 it had dropped to 15.7, and in 1910 to 15.6. Bearing in mind Pennsylvania's 7,655,000 population, this decreased death rate, small as it appears on its face, means in reality a tremendous saving of human lives. Had the death rate of 1906 prevailed in 1908, the latter year would have witnessed the death of 5914 more people than died. Had this same rate applied in 1910, instead of the decreased percentage recorded by the department of health, 6898 men, women and children now living and presumably in good health and spirits, would have died.

Pennsylvania is reaping the benefits of the state government's health campaign. This work will be continued, and as more and more the people realize its blessings, will be attended by even greater results.

Among the Theatres

THE PALACE—CHARLEROI.

A striking example of retribution was shown in a thrilling photoplay at the Palace Theatre this week. A young farmer, who is engaged to a sweet pretty girl goes with her and her parents to visit the county fair. The young man is lured to try his luck in a gambling game, and stung by losing keeps at it until he loses all. Then in a fight he is arrested by the police, in view of his sweethart and her parents. They leave him to his fate, and the young fellow, feeling disgraced, goes to the city and seeks work. The same sharpers who fleeced him plan to do the old farmer by selling him bogus stocks in a gold mine. While making the transaction the principle one relents on account of the beauty of the daughter, and blocks the game. He hires out to the farmer, and makes love to the girl, who rejects him because she is true to her first love. The ex-bunco man goes back to the city and finds the young farmer and tells him to go back, his sweetheart is waiting for him. It is a pretty story most graphically told in life motion pictures. Miss Helen Atwill rendered "The Rosary" this week, as well as other beautiful selections that were specially adopted to her magnificent voice.

THE STAR—CHARLEROI.

One of the features of the Star is the famous "Mut and Jeff" film, transforming into life motion pictures Bud Fisher's famous comic cartoons. Most amusing are these pictures when endowed with life and motion. The large circle of patrons of the Star watch eagerly for the "Mutt and Jeff" pictures and the announcement of their appearance draws big crowds. Other striking films of the week were "The Western Tramp," "The Collector's Purse," "The Best Policy," "Gray Wolf's Grief," "The Stage Robbers of San Juan," and "The Silent Signal." As the Star is the only theatre in town giving daily matinees, which start 2 o'clock every afternoon, it is doubly attractive to those who cannot attend the evening performances. Manager Tom Cowan gives a new show every day with three reels of the latest films.

THE GRAND—PITTSBURG.

Foreign novelties predominate in the extraordinary program of vaudeville to be given at the Grand Opera house during the week beginning Monday afternoon, October 23. Among the important alien attractions will be the Four Diving Norins from Sweden. This quartet of aquatic experts consists of two young women and two stalwart men, brothers and sisters and they are giving what has been universally described as the most sensational diving act ever presented in public.

Another European feature of equal importance is the Famous Bell family. This troupe numbers and presents a musical act more elaborate, more costly and more enjoyable than any similar performance of the present time.

Charlotte Parry, the gifted American protean actress, will be supported by her own company in a psychological fantasy entitled "Into the Light." Raymond and Caverly, the best of German dialect comedians, who have frequently convulsed Pittsburg audiences with their nonsensical patter and paradies are to return to offer their new specialty. Hugh McCormick and Grace Wallace, Australian ventriloquist artists, will present a unique skit entitled "At the Sea Side." Fiddler and Shelton are to give new songs and funny patter. For or five other specialties and moving pictures combined into a composite show compromise Manager Davis' attractive menu for the forthcoming week.

"BOB" COULSON RETURNS HOME

Brooklyn Outfielder Finishes Sucessful Season and Signs Contract

"Bob" Coulson, the Brooklyn National League outfielder, has returned to his home in Donora, where he expects to remain during the greater part of the winter and take things easy. efore he left Brooklyn he signed a contract for next season with a substantial advance of salary. Bob is well known in Charleroi having played here with the Charleroi team when the Magic City was represented in the P. O. M. League, during which time he was sold to the Cincinnati Nationals for $400 for a tryout.

During the past season Bob attained a batting average of 225 with the Brooklyns. He got a bad start, but in the latter part of the season recovered his batting eye and his average for the last three months of the season was 300. He played in all but seven games of the entire series.

Selfish Interest.

"You seem to be developing a great interest in conservation." "I am," replied Mr. Cumrox. "If they keep cutting down the trees, there won't be any woods for me to take to when mother and the girls get up these rounds of social gayety."

Aptly Described.

An Italian woman was asked in court if she had any musical instruments in her home. "No, signor," she replied, "nothing but rackets." "What?" queried the lawyer. "Rackets—the things they put in graphophones."

Wisdom for the Worker.

Always give of the best that is in you. Feel responsibility towards yourself and your work. Never be content with a compromise with work. Give an employer the best that you have in you to give.

BROWN FAMILY GOES TO HOME IN TOLEDO

Tomorrow Mrs. Edmund Brown and daughter, Miss Laura and Mrs. Brown's sister, Miss Hettie Davis, who is an inmate of the Brown family, leave for Toledo, Ohio, which will be their future home. Mr. Brown, who some time ago became superintendent of a large plate glass factory in the lake city, has prepared a home for his family who now join him. The Brown family havebeen residents of Charleroi for the past ten years or more, when Mr. Brown was associated with the Pittsburg Plate Glass company as superintendent of the local factory and in other capacities, and their large circle of friends exceedingly regret their departure. Mr. Brown's eldest son, Irving, who is the former's assistant, has been in Toledo with his family for some time.

Lights Replace Ushers.

To economize on ushers a New York moving picture theater has installed small incandescent lamps on the backs of the seats, arranged to burn only when a seat is unoccupied.

No Room for Improvement.

It was about 1720, at Amsterdam, that Fahrenheit made his first thermometer, which has served as a model ever since.

CLUB HAS MEETING

Donora Organization Fastidiously Entertains

LOCAL INTEREST FELT

A leading social event of the week in the valley was the President's Day Reception of the Donora Woman's Club on Wednesday, at which Charleroi was represented. The Donora American of Friday gives the following account of the affair:

"The Donora Woman's Club gave their President's Day reception Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. E. Bayard, Overlook Terrace Hall. The Hall presented a beautiful appearance in rich decorations of green and white, the club colors. An elegant program was augmented by the presence of Mrs. Robert D. Coard, who made her first bow as vice president of the South Western Penna. District. The reception was in charge of a committee composed of Mrs. Bayard, Mrs. W. J. Brown, Mrs. F. D. Haynes, Mrs. C. F. Thomas, Mrs. W. H. Lewis and Miss Edna Lewis.

"Mrs. J. F. Lewis, the new president, was in charge of the meeting. A green basket filled with white cosmos occupied the centre of the President's table. A pretty feature was the presentation of the gavel by retiring president, Mrs. D. W. Shoemaker, to Mrs. Lewis. Mrs. Shoemaker made a neat speech in which she wished her successor much success. The president's address followed and then on behalf of the Club Mrs. C. F. Thomas presented Mrs. Shoemaker and Mrs. Lewis with a beautiful bouquet of Killarney roses.

"Mrs. Coard made an elegant address, and short addresses were made by Mrs. J. H. Armstrong, president of the New Era Club of Pittsburg; Mrs. J. C. DeNoon, past president of the same club; Mrs. J. A. Bingler, president of the Woman's Club of Hazelwood; Mrs. C. T. Graves, president of the Mother's Club of Monongahela; Mrs. B. L. Ross, of the Friday Conversational Club, of Monongahela; Miss Edith Bowes of the Monessen Woman's Club; Mrs. Earl Piper of the Athena Club of Charleroi, and Mrs. N. E. Harris of Donora.

"Clever greetings form Prof. DeVaugh Jr., principal of the public schools, were read during the program, and were highly appreciated by the club members for their cordiality and good cheer. The refreshments were served in the club colors.

"Mr. MacGregor's solos and Mr. Young's efforts at piano were artistic features of the President's Day program."

A STEADY DRAIN

Sick Kidneys Weaken the Whole Body—Make You Ill, Languid And Depressed.

Sick kidneys weaken the body through the continual drainage of life—giving albumen from the blood into the urine, and the substitution of poisonous uric acid that goes broadcast through the system sowing the seeds of disease. Loss of albumen causes weakness, languor, depression. Uric poisoning causes rheumatic pain, nervousness, nausea, cricks in the back, gravel and kidney stones. The proper treatment is a kidney treatment, and the best remedy is Doan's Kidney Pills..

Mrs B. Mahoney, 823 McKean Ave., Charleroi, Pa., says: "For a long time a member of our family compained of pains in the small of the back. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills highly advertised, a box was procured at Piper Bros., Drug Store and their use begun. They brought such great relief that I do not hesitate to recommend them to other kidney sufferers."

Thre ballot form has been prepared by the commissioners at Washington and will be in size 19x20. A heavy line that will run through about the centre will separate the county tickets from the borough and the township tickets. The county ticket vote is returned to the prothonotary and the borough and township ticket vote is returned to the clerk of courts.

There are two complete sets of return sheets. The secretary of the commonwealth has certified to the commissioners the constitutional amendments to be voted upon. They do not affect any counties but Philadelphia and Allegheny counties. The ballots will have the usual squares for voting a straight ticket. ANGELS' VOICES.

(By Lulu.)

Angels' voices seem to linger
Holy in the evening air,
Murmuring with a pointed finger
"List! Thy God is everywhere."

To the brook I often linger—
Drawn there by music sweet,
In the stream I hear low voices
Where the rock and waters meet.

Often in the dark I linger
Waiting for the Angels' light;
Soft sweet whispering voices near me
Seem to say, "I'm here tonight."

In yon lone and silent city,
Built of marble, white and fair,
Angels' voices sound at midnight,
Murmuring softly, "I am there."

Bare thy head when in the desert,
Bend thy knee with awe and fear,
In thy heart of hearts then whisper,
"Thou art here, yes, thou art here."

Angels' arms are stretched above thee
Plaintively they say, "Do come,
Weary wanderer, I love thee;
Come my darling thy home."

LINCOLN AVENUE GRADE IS FOUND SATISFACTORY

No Objections Are Filed by Property Holders Along Street

LIGHTNING PROPOSITION

Council Hears Representative of Welsbach Company --That 8th Street Matter

With a number of property holders along Lincoln avenue present Council took up the matter of the grade set by Borough Engineer Paul Elder at a meeting Friday night discussion It was the night for filing of objections to the grade established. There were no objections made however, everything being satisfactory Plans were gone over thoroughly. The grade ordinance will not be taken up until at a regular meeting.

After a proposition had been submitted by Harry M McCabe of Pittsburg representing the Welsbach company to light the streets of Charleroi with gas at the rate of $20 per light—at least 700 lights being required—the light committee made their report of investigations made recently. They reported that by substituting Tungsten lights of 75 watts each for 21 arc lights, which would mean a reduction in the cost to the borough of nearly $500, the town would be better lighted. The light committee's report was laid on the table until they could investigate the proposition of the Welsbach. Then the street contract for the year will be let.

Representatives of the West Penn Electric company were present and showed maps of their proposed tower to be placed at Eighth street if changes for which the Macbeth-Evans Glass company has been asking are made. This latter was only discussed and the finality of the matter was that the West Penn people were told that until they and the Macbeth-Evans company could effect arrangements council could do nothing further through a representative of the Bell Telephone company presented a request that they be allowed to put up more poles in the borough it being declaimed that this many were necessary to supply the increasing service. The borough engineer and the street committee were given charge of the matter.

The meeting was the last which the present, Miss Laura Brown will participate in this year. Miss Brown and her mother leave tomorrow for their new home in Toledo, Ohio, Mr. Brown is superintendent of the glass works. Mrs T. M. Faddis the first vice president, as president of the Athena Club, succeeds Mrs. Brown.

Demand for Higher Pay

T. L. Lewis Says Miners Will Present Request for Better Wages

T. L. Lewis, former International President of the United Mine Workers of America, stated at Wheeling Friday that next year the miners would demand an increase of wages in all the local mining districts. He stated that they would demand $1 per ton for pick-mined coal and 75 cents per ton for machine-mined coal. The miners now receive 95 cents per ton for pick-mined coal and 55½ cents per ton for machine-mined coal.

Former President Lewis stated that the above increases would be part of the platform at the next convention of the United Mine Workers of America. Mr. Lewis is said to be a candidate for president of the international organization at the forthcoming election

Somers No. 1 and Arnold City Workings Are Closed

INCLUDED IN NEW TRACT

Among the 19 mines closed by the H. C Frick Coke company when it took over a number of the Pittsburg Coal company holdings, were the Somers No. 4 mine at Pricedale and the Arnold No. 1 mine at Arnold City. At these two mines the current pay roll was closed and the men paid in full. Indefinite suspension was ordered.

There are many surmises in mining circles as to just what the H. C. Frick Company intends to do with the 19 mines closed down. Probably some of the openings will be used but which ones only the chief officials of H. C. Frick company and the United States Steel corporation, which buys the Coke concern, know.

TIE TO BE DECIDED BY FLIPPING COPPERS

Candidates on Various Ticket to Meet at Washington Monday and "Take Chance" on Their "Nomination"

Next Monday a bunch of candidates for local offices in borough and township, will assemble at the county commissioners' office in Washington and "flip coppers" or toss a coin to decide who will be the nominee for various offices on various tickets. Despite the wide range of candidates as well as tickets in the field, announced that 363 tie votes occurred in the county. The law provides that where a tie vote occurs the contestants shall toss a coin or decide by drawing lots who is to be the nominee on the official ballot.

The tie votes occur for nearly all of the township and borough offices in various parts of the county. In Charleroi it is announced that Fred Pieper, Jr., and Ber Wilson are a tie with 37 votes each on the Keystone ticket for school director for two years, and that for justice of the peace on the same ticket C. G. Collins, R. P. Fitzgerald and Charles Black are a tie with six votes apiece. This latter is an error, as more Keystone votes than that were cast in a single precinct. Some of the candidates interested in the matter have written to the commissioners calling attention to the error, and it is probable that the withdrawal of Charles Black, which had been filed [illegible] with the fusion agreement will be presented at the commissioners office, so that a toss up for a place on that ticket will not be necessary. Black was the minority candidate.

In Fallowfield township, Joseph Armbrewster and John A Carson are tied for the office of constable on the Keystone ticket with one vote each In Speers borough Samuel Corbett and Dan Dougherty are tied with four votes each for auditor on the Keystone ticket Twilight borough has a tie on the Republican ticket, where S. V Hughes, H O. Smith and M. Huber have one vote each for high constable.

STATEMENT IS ISSUED

Hussey-Binns Shovel Company Corrects Rumors

NO CHANGE IS MADE

To offset certain annoying rumors, the Hussey-Binns Shovel company following a meeting of the board of directors in Pittsburg Friday, today issued the statement which is published herewith. The rumors were to the effect that satisfactory work was not being done by Superintendent Frank M Haines here, and that he was to be removed in favor of another former employe of the plant. New men are being put to work at the local plant and from now on there will be additional workmen put on as they apply for duty. It is not thought that many days will pass until the entire plant is working as usual. The statement follows.

To Whom it May Concern:

We understand that rumors exist in Charleroi that the board of directors and officers are dissatisfied with the management of their plant as being conducted by Mr. Frank M. Haines, superintendent. As these rumors are all false and tend to injure the company and interfere with the management by the superintendent, the board of directors and officers, at a meeting held this day have authorized the president to publish in the Charleroi papers the fact that there is no dissatisfaction on the part of the directors and that the superintendent has their unqualified support, his management of the plant and its organization being thoroughly approved by them, all rumors to the contrary notwithstanding.

By order of the Board of Directors.
Hussey-Binns Shovel Company,
R. H. Binns,
President.

GRAVE DANGER BECAUSE OF WATER IN COAL MINE

State Engineer Inspects Old Rostraver Workings.

BREAK IS MUCH FEARED

Damage and Loss of Life Might Result--Abnormal Rainfall Cause

Alarmed by the presence of a great quantity of water in the old abandoned Rostraver coal mine, which has its main opening on the hill across from North Charleroi, which it is feared will break loose, officials of the Pittsburg Steel company of Monessen have taken up the matter with the State with the hope that the mine be drained. The dip in the mine is near Thirteenth street, Monessen, just above the plant of the Pittsburg Steel company, and should the volume of water force its way through this weak point, a not unlikely occurrence it seems, great damage and possibly the loss of life would be the result

The abandoned mine occupying 15 acres or more it is stated is completely filled with water. This unusual condition of things was caused by the abnormal rainfall of the past summer The old mine serves as a drainage basin for the entire country in this vicinity.

Roughly estimated if the mine is filled with water there is in the neighborhood of 34,000,000 gallons stored up. This is more than four times the amount of water the two Charleroi Water company reservoirs will hold when filled to their utmost capacity. Some conception of the damage which might be caused by the water in the old mine breaking loose, if even half the water contained therein went out at one time can be had by a comparison.

That the condition is serious was evidenced this week when Farey Gannet, representing the State, came to Monessen to inspect the conditions and consult with Superintendent Gen. Nosh of the Pittsburg Steel company and John G. Parke, chief engineer Last year late in the fall the water near the opening on the hill at North Charleroi brooke loose and tore its destructive way down the hillside. Fortunately the damage then was small.

WORK IS RESUMED

Alice Mine Near Roscoe Starts Operation After Shutdown

STEADY RUN INDICATED

The Alice mine, across the river from Roscoe, which has been idle for four months, resumed Thursday of this week. This means the employment of 500 more men who have either been idle while the mine was shut down or sought employment elsewhere. The mine has been one of the up-river industrial stand-bys for a number of years, and the enforced idleness during the past summer was keenly felt. Now that operations have resumed a better order of business is looked for in that community.

During the shut-down extensive repairs and alterations were made for the more complete working of the mine. Superintendent Ausburn has everything in first-class shape that will provide for the convenience and safety of the men, and it is expected that the production will be greatly facilitated. In view of the extreme depression that has existed in mining operations along the river the resumption of the Alice mine is hailed with great joy.

BACHELOR GIRLS HAVE JOLLY TIME

Members of the Bachelor Girl's club and their young men friends were entertained by Miss Jean Colvert at her home on Fallowfield avenue Friday evening at a masquerade party. The affair assumed all the form of an old fashioned Hallowe'en masquerade entertainment, and as a means of diversion old fashioned Hallowe'en games were enjoyed A fortune teller who told fortunes recklessly as to whether they applied or not, furnished much amusement. The house was picturesquely and handsomely decorated with Hallowe'en decorations. A buffet lunch was served.

ARE WE BOSS RIDDEN?

Notwithstanding the declarations of an active political minority that Pennsylania is a boss-ridden State, not completely under the political domination of a machine, the rank and file of the people are ordinarily contented in that respect It is true that certain politicians are recognized as leaders, who in some respects shape the political destiny of their parties, but their rule, if it may be called that, rests upon the approval and sufferance of the voters of the parties they represent. If there is anything to criticise in the system that prevails or the policy that is followed, it is the people themselves who are to blame, and not the so-called machine.

As a matter of fact if the residents of Pennsylvania will but compare notes they will readily see that they are as well governed as any of the other States, and enjoy many advantages which the residents of other States do not have Few, if any of the other States furnish free text books and supplies to their school children, and few of the States have so good a system of public schools which are not only absolutely free, but the children are compelled to go to school until they have the rudiments at least of an English education. In no State does taxation for the maintenance of the Commonwealth rest so lightly on the individual. The corporations and the larger interests pay the most of the State taxes, and the average per capita of taxation for State purposes is but fourteen cents for each individual a year

So far as political bossism goes, the voters have in their hands power to nominate all candidates, even to county political committeemen, and the delegates to the State convention who nominate the Governor and State officials. It is true that the voters cannot nominate and elect United States Senator direct—neither can any of the other States for that matter—but they can elect the State Senators and Assemblymen who choose the United States Senators, and can make that an issue any time they see fit Things are as they are for the reason that a majority of the people want them that way. When the people desire a change they will exercise their prerogative, which is supreme, and elect such candidates and dictate such policies as they desire No other State or government for that matter can do more to give the people direct control of their affairs than Pennsylvania enjoys today.

FIGHTING DISEASE

Attention is called to an extended article on the "State's Warfare Against Disease" which appears elsewhere in this issue The article tells what the State is doing to protect the health of its people, and of the great progress made in caring for those who are afflicted with tuberculosis and how through the agency of the State Health Department the Great White Plague is being successfully combatted

By providing mountain homes for sufferers of the Great White Plague in various sections of the State, as well as the creation of 115 free dispensaries where tuberculosis patients may be treated free of cost the State Health Department has materially checked the progress of the disease that kills more people than any other malady which flesh is heir to In preventing the pollution of the water supply of the State progress in another department for the protection of the health of the people has been attained. The State has also taken steps to check the spread of all contagious and infectious diseases, and to prevent accidents and the baneful results that follow No other State is doing so great a work in the war against disease as Pennsylvania, and a careful reading of the article in question will give a better idea of what the people are having done for them in this respect.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

"Some funny things occur in the banking business," said a banker of the valley the other day. "Recently an Irish woman who had opened a small store at one of the mining hamlets, came to the bank in answer to a letter we had addressed to her telling that a wholesale grocery firm in Pittsburg had drawn on her for an overdue bill The woman didn't understand the proceeding, and we explained it to her as clearly as we could She brought along money to pay the bill and asked how she should send it in We advised her to get a draft, which was made out and handed over to her, with instructions to send it into the firm in payment for the bill.

"A few days later the woman came post haste to the bank and demanded:

"Didn't ye pay them Pittsburg fellers that money I give ye for their bill?"

"Didn't you send the draft you got here?' she was asked.

"'Indade I did not I thought that was me resate, and I hung it on the hook with the rest'

"She had taken the draft home and filed it thinking we would remit the money and the firm had written, threatening suit if the bill was not paid We had hard work explaining to her what she should do, and she departed with the remark:

"'Thim bankin' ways sure gits me."

"When I used to attend the Church League ball game last summer I remarked that the players who grasped their bats close at the end and tried to kill the ball got the fewest hits," said a local fan in talking about the world's series. "The few good batters in the league—those who, while not always getting a safe hit in the game rarely struck out—always held their bat short up and chopped at the ball. I noticed that was the way the big league players batted in the few league games I saw this season, and I wondered why amateur players did not try chopping at the ball instead of swinging

"This theory of batting is confirmed by none other than Christy Mathewson the premier pitcher of the Giants In a newspaper article Mathewson says the reason New York lost the two second games to the Athletics was because the former players tried to make [illegible] by holding their bats close at the end and making long swings instead of short chops, the way the most of them get their safe hits Matthewson says there are only three players in the big leagues who can bat safely by grasping their bats at the end and taking long swings. These, he says, are Honus Wagner of the Pittsburg Nationals, Magee of the Philadelphia Nationals, and Lajoie of the Cleveland Americans

"When this method of batting is so well known, I wonder that amateur and minor league players do not profit more by the practices of [illegible] leaguers"

STATE'S WARFARE AGAINST DISEASE

Remarkable Record of Pennsylvania's Life Saving Service

DEATH RATE DECREASES

Liberal Appropriations For Extension of Health Department's Work and Support by Tener Administration.

Pennsylvania is proud of her department of health. And she may well be for no governmental agency could give back to the people a larger return for the taxpayer's money invested than has State Health Commissioner Dixon's organized "standing army of health," as the well equipped fighting force of sanitary workers has been aptly described.

Created by broad, comprehensive health laws during the administration of Governor Pennypacker, fostered and strengthened by liberal appropriations and broadened with the responsibility of a state-wide campaign against tuberculosis under Governor Stuart, the department of health received the hearty support of Governor Tener at the first legislature in his administration Today, after six years of existence, it is the people's powerful arm of protection, and as such it has won their trust and confidence and cooperation.

Strong and powerful as is the public health arm of the state government service, its humane side. Indeed, as Dr. Dixon frequently remarks, the backbone of his department's entire campaign is the friendly working relation in which his health army stands to the people, not as a mere sanitary policeman, but as a helpful friend and adviser. This is the position the state health department aims to assume, teaching and helping along the way to better and happier conditions of living.

Mountain Home For Sufferers.

In no other give [illegible] work is the department of health more closely to the people than in the conduct of the state campaign against tuberculosis, nor is any other health work showing more encouraging results. At Mont Alto, where the state has built a model village for tuberculosis, 5531 patients had been treated from June 1, 1907, to June 30, 1911. Here in the pure mountain air and pine laden breezes hundreds of poor sufferers have won back life and health. Many [illegible] have been so greatly benefitted as to be able to return to their [illegible] and assist their families. Still others, in whom the disease had advanced too far, have been made comfortable and provided with a mountain home where they would not be a source of danger to their own people.

Recently, when the state's tuberculosis exhibit was in Pittsburg, visitors noticed a large, husky fellow pointing out the features of a model Mont Alto building to visitors. Upon inquiry it was found that the young man was a former Mont Alto patient. The joy of life and restored health shone in his face. He was only a type of many who have won the fight under the state's care. These persons, with health and strength restored, go back to their home districts as missionaries to teach the lessons of prevention. To follow up these cases wherever they go and see that they take proper care of themselves and others is an important feature of the state government's organized work. The state has been particularly active in caring for advanced cases, the records showing that the greatest number of cases treated at Mont Alto went there with the disease far developed.

New Sanitarium at Cresson.

"The department of health is today fighting the [illegible]," says Dr. Dixon, "with the end in view of ultimately wiping out the disease, of using every dollar of the taxpayer's money to the best advantage, and at the same time showing a wise humanitarianism in the care provided for all classes of cases, the incipient, the moderately advanced and those for whom nothing can be done except to make their closing hours as comfortable as possible."

Protected by the forests from the winter winds, but enjoying the full benefits of the high altitude, the new state sanitorium for tuberculosis at Cresson is being constructed by the department of health on the property given the commonwealth by Mr. Andrew Carnegie. It is so planned that four wings may be constructed, one at a time as needed, utilizing the same central building. Each wing or ward will accommodate 160 patients, giving a total capacity of 640 for the finally completed institution.

The first story of the structure is of sandstone found on the property. The second story is of asbestos boards timbered, and the roof will be of asbestos shingles. The layout permits of the maximum amount of sunlight, with the wards so arranged as to accommodate the varying demand of advanced and incipient cases. The central building will provide a dining room, reception and examining rooms on the first floor, and apartments for the doctors, nurses and help on the second floor.

A Retreat in Berks County.

Connecting the east and west wards with the central building are [illegible] that have enclosed basements through which the patients can walk to the dining room in stormy weather, and a first floor to be used for the open air treatment. Here one hundred may sit in rest chairs and enjoy the sun shine, and thus is overcome the necessity of porches that would bar the sun from the patient's rooms. Into this sun corridor also the patients bed can be wheeled. To economize by using the same foundation and roof for as much as possible, a second floor of each connecting corridor will accommodate twenty beds for hospital cases.

The sanatorium site, about 2400 feet above the sea level, is sufficiently far from all industries to have a pure air for the patients. The summers are cool and the winters long and unbroken.

At Hamburg, in Berks county, a site has been purchased for an eastern sanatorium, which will be built along the same lines as the one at Cresson. The site selected commands a pleasing view of wooded mountains, broken into gaps and peaks, with the Schuylkill river winding in the valley to the west. Far enough away to avoid all objection of noise and smoke, but near enough to relieve a sense of lonesomeness, the Schuylkill valley branches of the Pennsylvania and Reading railroads are seen. The quaint town of Hamburg nestles in the valley below, bordered by stretches of farm lands with restful pastoral scenes. At these three state institutions, Mont Alto, Cresson and Hamburg, the poor will receive the ideal treatment for tuberculosis.

Dispensaries Care For Thousands.

Hand in hand with the sanatorium work goes the dispensary treatment. At 115 places in Pennsylvania the state department of health has a free tuberculosis dispensary, in charge of a trained physician, with necessary assistants and visiting nurses. Some idea of the amount of work being done by these dispensaries may be gathered from the fact that from July, 1907, to July, 1911, 41,782 tuberculosis sufferers had been examined and treated and regularly visited at their homes by the state's efficient corps of trained nurses.

The educational and sociological work alone that is being done by the state from these dispensaries to prevent the spread of disease and to better the conditions of living among the poor, would amply justify all the money Pennsylvania has appropriated to its tuberculosis campaign. And in connection with this work of educating the people, opportunity should not be lost to refer to the splendid aid given by the public press in general, through which it has been possible from day to day and week to week to talk over these problems of better health and better living conditions with the home group around every fireside in the state.

When the dispensaries were started it was realized that [illegible] fully successful the dispensary must first of all have to locate the indigent cases. It, therefore, solicited and received the hearty co-operation of civic clubs, churches, organized charity associations, labor unions and the large employers of labor throughout the state. This co-operation has always continued, and the department appreciates its value.

Nurses In the Homes.

When an applicant for dispensary treatment has been carefully examined by the physician in charge, and full information as to the history of the case, environment, occupation, etc., noted, he is carefully instructed as to what he must do to improve his own health and the absolute necessity of taking certain precautions to avoid infecting others. He is supplied with sputum cups and paper napkins, and if he is too poor to get regularly the proper nourishment, this is supplied to him in the form of milk and oil, the latter having proven a most efficient food.

A day or so after the new patient has been to the dispensary a trained nurse calls at the home. The squalor and disease breeding conditions that the nurse so frequently finds present a task that would seem impossible. But the nurse is all courage. Bright and cheerful and a model of cleanliness herself, she is not afraid to roll up her sleeves and set the pace for getting the house in order. Windows are thrown open and God's glorious sunshine is allowed to come in and run riot through the rooms, killing as nothing else can do so well the lurking germs of disease. What a difference is made in that home. The tuberculosis patient is thoroughly instructed in the precautions he must observe and the health rules he must follow, and each member of the family is similarly taught how to avoid infection. The patient himself is especially advised to sleep with windows wide open or, better still, to sleep out of doors. Helpful suggestions are offered as to how sleeping quarters can be made out of back porches, for instance, at a nominal expense. Then the nurse makes a quick study of the other conditions in the home. Perhaps she notices that the children are anaemic, poorly nourished and improperly clad, not necessarily because the family is destitute, but because the little income that exists is not being put to best advantage. Here is an opportunity to teach the mother how both in selecting and cooking the food the greatest possible nutrition can be secured for the least amount of money.

Saving of Child Life.

So it is that nurses are going to the homes of the poor throughout Pennsylvania, letting in the sunlight, teaching the life-giving principles of fresh air and proper food, changing filth and disorder to cleanliness and neatness, making these people their friends and thus making them understand that the state is their friend. Can there possibly be any other result than that these people should be lifted up, or, better still, that they should be incited to climb up to a higher plane of living and morality. Thus they become better citizens, better producers, and the commonwealth is so much the healthier, wealthier and happier thereby.

In October, 1905, Health Commissioner Dixon inaugurated free distribution of diphtheria anti-toxin by the state. Up to December, 1910, 27,318 cases of this dread disease, mostly little children, were treated for cure with the life-saving serum. From statistics it is gathered that without anti-toxin forty-two out of every one hundred of these children probably would have died, but thanks to the state's beneficence only 2324 died. Free anti-toxin was also given for immunization purposes in 21,294 cases, mostly children who had been in contact with the disease. All but 335 of these were absolutely protected against diphtheria. The actual saving of child life resulting from the state's free distribution of diphtheria anti-toxin in these five years was in cold figures 9152 lives.

Pollution of Water Supply.

The battle for pure water supplies has been waged in Pennsylvania with unparalleled success. In 1905, when the present purity of water law was enacted the streams of the state from one end to the other were open sewers for municipalities large and small and were poisoned by the individual property owner without any regard whatever for the neighbors down stream. Up to Aug. 1, 1911, private sources of stream pollution to the number of 34,491 had been abated upon formal notice from the department, and thousands more have been stopped through the moral influence of this work.

[illegible] modern sewage disposal [illegible] have been either built or are in process of construction as approved by the state. Two hundred and eighty-four municipalities and private sewerage corporations are building comprehensive sewerage systems in accordance with approved plans for sewage treatment works. Eighty-six modern water filtration plants have been approved by the state and are either built or being erected.

And what of typhoid fever, in view of the work for pure water?

In 1906, out of every 100,000 persons in Pennsylvania, 56.5 died of typhoid fever, in 1907, 50.3; in 1908, 34.4; in 1910, 24.5. There are now living more than 2400 persons who, had the death rate of 1906 prevailed in 1910, would have died from typhoid.

Results of Health Campaign.

Consider the economic value to the state of such a saving of life. The most conservative economists place the average value of such a life at $3000. This means that the reduction in the death rate from typhoid fever alone saved the commonwealth $7,200,000. No account is taken in this estimate of the untold suffering and anguish from which thousands of homes were saved.

Thousands of physicians throughout Pennsylvania are being constantly aided in diagnosing their cases by the examinations of pathological specimens sent by them to the state department of health laboratories. Important research work is being done by the state in these laboratories, work that is adding to the world's knowledge of preventative medicine.

More than once in the past few years the federal government has held up as a model Pennsylvania's system for the collection of vital statistics, that phase of work that lies at the foundation of all successful sanitation.

All this has shown striking results. In 1906 the death rate in Pennsylvania per 1000 of population was 16.5. In 1908 it had dropped to 15.7, and in 1910 to 15.6. Bearing in mind Pennsylvania's 7,655,000 population, this decreased death rate, small as it appears on its face, means in reality a tremendous saving of human lives. Had the death rate of 1906 prevailed in 1908, the latter year would have witnessed the death of 5014 more people than died. Had this same rate applied in 1910, instead of the decreased percentage recorded by the department of health, 6598 men, women and children now living and presumably in good health and spirits, would have died.

Pennsylvania is reaping the benefits of the state government's health campaign. This work will be continued, and as more and more the people realize its blessings, will be attended by even greater results.

Among the Theatres

THE PALACE—CHARLEROI.

A striking example of retribution was shown in a thrilling photoplay at the Palace Theatre this week. A young farmer, who is engaged to a sweet pretty girl goes with her and her parents to visit the county fair. The young man is lured to try his luck in a gambling game, and stung by losing keeps at it until he loses all. Then in a fight he is arrested by the police, in view of his sweethart and her parents. They leave him to his fate, and the young fellow, feeling disgraced, goes to the city and seeks work. The same sharpers who fleeced him plan to do the old farmer by selling him bogus stocks in a gold mine. While making the transaction the principle one relents on account of the beauty of the daughter, and blocks the game. He hires out to the farmer, and makes love to the girl, who rejects him because she is true to her first love. The ex-bunco man goes back to the city and finds the young farmer and tells him to go back, his sweetheart is waiting for him. It is a pretty story most graphically told in life motion pictures. Miss Helen Atwill rendered "The Rosary" this week, as well as other beautiful selections that were specially adopted to her magnificent voice.

THE STAR—CHARLEROI.

One of the features of the Star is the famous "Mut and Jeff" film, transforming into life motion pictures Bud Fisher's famous comic cartoons. Most amusing are these pictures when endowed with life and motion. The large circle of patrons of the Star watch eagerly for the "Mutt and Jeff" pictures and the announcement of their appearance draws big crowds. Other striking films of the week were "The Western Tramp," "The Collector's Purse," "The Best Policy," "Gray Wolf's Grief," "The Stage Robbers of San Juan," and "The Silent Signal." As the Star is the only theatre in town giving daily matinees, which start 2 o'clock every afternoon, it is doubly attractive to those who cannot attend the evening performances. Manager Tom Cowan gives a new show every day with three reels of the latest films.

THE GRAND—PITTSBURG.

Foreign novelties predominate in the extraordinary program of vaudeville to be given at the Grand Opera house during the week beginning Monday afternoon, October 23. Among the important alien attractions will be the Four Diving Norins from Sweden. This quartet of aquatic experts consists of two young women and two stalwart men, brothers and sisters and they are giving what has been universally described as the most sensational diving act ever presented in public.

Another European feature of equal importance is the Famous Bell family. This troupe numbers and presents a musical act more elaborate, more costly and more enjoyable than any similar performance of the present time.

Charlotte Parry, the gifted American protean actress, will be supported by her own company in a psychological fantasy entitled "Into the Light." Raymond and Caverly, the best of German dialect comedians, who have frequently convulsed Pittsburg audiences with their nonsensical patter and paradies are to return to offer their new specialty. Hugh McCormick and Grace Wallace, Australian ventriloquist artists, will present a unique skit entitled "At the Sea Side." Fiddler and Shelton are to give new songs and funny patter. For or five other specialties and moving pictures combined into a composite show compromise Manager Davis' attractive menu for the forthcoming week.

"BOB" COULSON RETURNS HOME

Brooklyn Outfielder Finishes Sucessful Season and Signs Contract

"Bob" Coulson, the Brooklyn National League outfielder, has returned to his home in Donora, where he expects to remain during the greater part of the winter and take things easy. Before he left Brooklyn he signed a contract for next season with a substantial advance of salary. Bob is well known in Charleroi having played here with the Charleroi team when the Magic City was represented in the P. O. M League, during which time he was sold to the Cincinnati Nationals for $400 for a tryout.

During the past season Bob attained a batting average of 225 with the Brooklyns. He got a bad start, but in the latter part of the season recovered his batting eye and his average for the last three months of the season was 300. He played in all but seven games of the entire series.

Selfish Interest.

"You seem to be developing a great interest in conservation." "I am," replied Mr. Cumrox. "If they keep cutting down the trees, there won't be any woods for me to take to when mother and the girls get up these rounds of social gayety."

Aptly Described.

An Italian woman was asked in court if she had any musical instruments in her home. "No, signor," she replied, "nothing but rackets." "What?" queried the lawyer. "Rackets—the things they put in graphophones."

Wisdom for the Worker.

Always give of the best that is in you. Feel responsibility towards yourself and your work. Never be content with a compromise with work. Give an employer the best that you have in you to give.

BROWN FAMILY GOES TO HOME IN TOLEDO

Tomorrow Mrs. Edmund Brown and daughter, Miss Laura and Mrs. Brown's sister, Miss Hettie Davis, who is an inmate of the Brown family, leave for Toledo, Ohio, which will be their future home. Mr. Brown, who some time ago became superintendent of a large plate glass factory in the lake city, has prepared a home for his family who now join him. The Brown family have been residents of Charleroi for the past ten years or more, when Mr. Brown was associated with the Pittsburg Plate Glass company as superintendent of the local factory and in other capacities, and their large circle of friends exceedingly regret their departure. Mr. Brown's eldest son, Irving, who is the former's assistant, has been in Toledo with his family for some time.

CLUB HAS MEETING

Donora Organization Fastidiously Entertains

LOCAL INTEREST FELT

A leading social event of the week in the valley was the President's Day Reception of the Donora Woman's Club on Wednesday, at which Charleroi was represented. The Donora American of Friday gives the following account of the affair:

"The Donora Woman's Club gave their President's Day reception Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. E. Bayard Outbook Terrace Hall. The Hall presented a beautiful appearance in rich decorations of green and white, the club colors. An elegant program was augmented by the presence of Mrs. Robert D. Coard, who made her first bow as vice president of the South Western Penna. District. The reception was in charge of a committee composed of Mrs. Bayard, Mrs. W. J. Brown, Mrs. F. D. Haynes, Mrs. C. F. Thomas, Mrs. W. H. Lewis and Miss Edna Lewis.

"Mrs. J. F. Lewis, the new president, was in charge of the meeting. A green basket filled with white cosmos occupied the centre of the President's table. A pretty feature was the presentation of the gavel by retiring president, Mrs. D. W. Shoemaker, to Mrs. Lewis. Mrs. Shoemaker made a neat speech in which she wished her successor much success. The president's address followed and then on behalf of the Club Mrs. C. F. Thomas presented Mrs. Shoemaker and Mrs. Lewis with a beautiful bouquet of Killarney roses.

"Mrs. Coard made an elegant address, and short addresses were made by Mrs. J. H. Armstrong, president of the New Era Club of Pittsburg; Mrs. J. C. DeNoon, past president of the same club; Mrs. J. A. Bingler, president of the Woman's Club of Hazelwood, Mrs. C. T. Graves, president of the Mother's Club of Monongahela; Mrs. B. L. Ross, of the Friday Conversational Club, of Monongahela; Miss Edith Bowes of the Monessen Woman's Club; Mrs. Earl Piper of the Athena Club of Charleroi, and Mrs. N. E. Harris of Donora.

"Clever greetings form Prof. DeVaugh Jr., principal of the public schools, were read during the program, and were highly appreciated by the club members for their cordiality and good cheer. The refreshments were served in the club colors.

"Mr. MacGregor's solos and Mr. Young's efforts at piano were artistic features of the President's Day program."

A STEADY DRAIN

Sick Kidneys Weaken the Whole Body—Make You Ill, Languid And Depressed.

Sick kidneys weaken the body through the continual drainage of life—giving albumen from the blood into the urine, and the substitution of poisonous uric acid that goes broadcast through the system sowing the seeds of disease. Loss of albumen causes weakness, languor, depression. Uric poisoning causes rheumatic pain, nervousness, nausea, cricks in the back, gravel and kidney stones. The proper treatment is a kidney treatment, and the best remedy is Doan's Kidney Pills.

Mrs B. Mahoney, 323 McKean Ave., Charleroi, Pa., says: "For a long time a member of our family complained of pains in the small of the back. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills highly advertised, a box was procured at Piper Bros., Drug Store and their use begun. They brought such great relief that I do not hesitate to recommend them to other kidney sufferers."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

In all the newest leathers and fabrics the Red Cross Shoe has smarter lines and fits closer than any other shoe.

Until they saw the Red Cross Style Book or tried on the actual shoe so many women thought that the comfort of a Red Cross Shoe was due to soft leather, a low heel, clumsy lines and loose fit.

As a matter of fact, the comfort of the Red Cross Shoe is due to the way it fits the foot and follows its every movement as a glove moves with the hand.

OFFICIAL BALLOT BLANKET IN SIZE

Thre ballot form has been prepared by the commissioners at Washington and will be in size 19x20. A heavy line that will run through about the centre will separate the county tickets from the borough and the township tickets. Election boards will be required to note the two separate tickets as the returns have to be made to two separate offices. The county ticket vote is returned to the prothonotary and the borough and township ticket vote is returned to the clerk of courts.

There are two complete sets of return sheets. The secretary of the commonwealth has certified to the commissioners the constitutional amendments to be voted upon. They do not affect any counties but Philadelphia and Allegheny counties. The ballots will have the usual squares for voting a straight ticket. If a voter splits his ticket he will be required to make 28 crosses to vote for the candidates. This will be so on the average ballot.

ANGELS' VOICES.

(By Lulu.)

Angels' voices seem to linger
Holy in the evening air,
Murmuring with a pointed finger
"List! Thy God is everywhere."

To the brook I often linger—
Drawn there by music sweet,
In the stream I hear low voices
Where the rock and waters meet.

Often in the dark I linger
Waiting for the Angels' light;
Soft sweet whispering voices near me
Seem to say, "I'm here tonight."

In yon lone and silent city,
Built of marble, white and fair,
Angels' voices sound at midnight,
Murmuring softly, "I am there."

Bare thy head when in the desert,
Bend thy knee with awe and fear,
In thy heart of hearts then whisper,
"Thou art here, yes, thou art here."

Angels' arms arestretched above thee
Plaintively they say, "Do come,
Weary wanderer, I love thee;
Come my darling thy home."
